Business Man Caught By Federal Officers

Federal Officers Catch Man With Liquor in Possession

Federal officers made a visit to Richmond Monday night and caught one more in the dragnet. Q. M. Lewis, who runs the Terminal bar at 200 Macdonald avenue was arrested on a charge of having liquor in his possession. He was released on bail Monday evening and went to San Francisco Tuesday to appear in the federal court. At his trial he was found guilty and sentenced to 30 days.

SHELL FOR MILK BOTTLE.

The milk bottle on the dining table is considered very bad form, but it is exceedingly convenient and for that reason the temptation to make use of it in this manner is very strong. A method of camouflaging the milk bottle consist of a metal shell with a spout and a handle, which takes the form of a pitefer and when the bottle is dropped into this container the milk may be poured directly from it. It is said to have a sanitary recommendation in that, for nursery use, it does not necessitate the pouring of milk into a bottle which may not have been sterilized.

New Summer Schedule Of Auto Ferry Sunday

The new summer schedule of the Richmond-San Rafael ferry goes into effect next Sunday. Additional trips will be made all during the summer months in order to take care of the increased business that is anticipated.

Work on the new ferry is progressing. When this boat is placed on the run, the service between this city and Point San Quentin will be the best of any in the state.

Last year the One boat carried over 84,000 automobiles across the bay.

PARISIANS STIRRED UP.

In the Louvre museum, Paris, France, the Assyrian room usually has attracted scant attention from visitors, but it is crowded now simply because some person got in there early one morning and broke a show case. Everybody wants to see the splintered glass. Some say a gold necklace 2,000 years old disappeared. Others assert that nothing has been touched and that the "burglar" merely wished to show that the museum wasn't properly guarded.

Suggests Tax Used For School Teachers Salaries

Suggestions for relief of the shortage of funds for the salaries of California school teachers were contained in a letter recently sent to State Superintendent of Schools William C. Woods by Controller John S. Chambers.

Chambers suggests that the entire state income from inheritance tax sources, normally between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000 per year, be set aside for school funds. In this way, he says, no additional burden on the taxpayers will result but the teachers' salaries will be insured.

The controller also contends that the proposed change would help defeat the opponents of the inheritance tax law, who, he says are seeking to kill or cripple that source of state revenue.

Save on Light and Power

It is recommended by power administrator, H. G. Butler, that all irrigation and pumping, after the first of May, should be done at night, in order to permit sufficient power to be available for such manufacturing as would be unable to operate during other than the day hours.

The power companies in California (with possibly one exception) are facing this shortage and it is to the advantage of the public at large that the curtailment of the usage of electric lighting and power be given. Farmers' organizations in rural districts may do a great deal of good by encouraging and adopting a system of pumping and irrigation at night, and especially on Sundays, over which period there seems to be no apparent shortage of generating capacity.

A True Story of the "Castoffs"

"John come out of that shed! What've you in there so long?" But John paid little attention to the wife's call.

John was busy, very busy sorting up old trousers, many with "bull-eyes" and a number with half-soles.

They looked good to John, who had just passed a show window a few minutes previous where a suit of hand-me-downs was marked $78. "Nothin' doin'," said John, audibly. "I'm going to give the h-ell a solar plex, I'll tell the world."

And holding up a pair of trousers that originally cost $10, the price being $35 now, at Easter tide. John's face looked as pleasant as the full moon's.

And that wasn't all John found. There were several pairs of old shoes, without a hole in them except the aperture for the foot to enter, that looked awful good to John. The same shoes, or rather a cheap imitation of them, now cost $16.

When John emerged from that shed, he looked like a portable second hand store—in fact John wasn't visible—only his lower pedals. He was covered with overcoats, vests, trousers, coats of all patterns from 1914 down to date—all high class material.

And the best of it all, John is not too proud to wear the oldtimers, although some of them may be a little off in cut. John says it is a sure cure for profligacy, which has got a strangle hold on all of us, it seems.

Don't vote for the man. Vote for principle, the greatest good to the greatest number.

You cannot put a chick back in its shell. Neither can you put our country back where it was before the war. Its shell is broken, too.

Squirrel Hunters Ask Permit to Shoot in the City

Representatives of the federal laboratory of San Francisco have asked permission to hunt squirrels with shotguns in Albany, in order to secure samples of fleas to submit to the U. S. Health department for examination.

It is claimed Albany squirrels have stingers that inoculate plague germs, and that the squirrel whiskey distilled and bootlegged in Albany fails to counteract the poison, the patient succumbing soon after drinking the "whiskey."

Campus Circus Nets Students $6000

Final returns from the "Big C" Circus given by the students of the university on the campus show that $6179.65 was cleared from the affair. The sum will be donated to the Student Union. The total receipts were $10,509.79, $4330.74 of which was expended.

May Be True

When you're down on the League of Nations, it may be because you're not up (on) it. Get busy.

We are now International-American. This is true whether we like it or not.

Clothing Thief Has Preliminary Examination

William Alston Spencer, alias William Mitchell, who confessed to robbing Smith & Crane's clothing store, had his preliminary examination before Judge Odell Wednesday afternoon and was held to answer before the Superior court.

Spencer said his mother died when he was very small, and as his father was a traveling man, he was allowed to drift about to suit himself.

Two Local Men Are Honored by Grand Lodge

Two local men were elected grand officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West at the recent session of the grand parlor at San Diego. James F. Hoey of Martinez was elected grand president and Harry G. Williams of Oakland was elected second vice grand president. Hoey is a young attorney, and was formerly deputy county tax collector of Contra Costa county.

Wardell Is Here After Delinquent Income Taxes

Gustus S. Wardell, collector of internal revenue, yesterday turned his attention to the collection of delinquent income taxes for 1917-1918. It is estimated that nearly 2000 taxpayers, representing unpaid taxes of nearly a quarter of a million dollars, are yet to be heard from.

Warrants of restraint were sent out to them Wednesday, these being the third and last notices sent to delinquents.

Found Guilty of Stealing Junk

Fred Setoro and M. P. Wright who were arrested last month for stealing junk from the Carey brickyard were found guilty in Judge Odell's court yesterday morning. They will receive their sentence today.

P. G. & E. Allowed To Issue Certificates

The Railroad commission has granted the Pacific Gas and Electric company authority to issue $10,000,000 of temporary certificates, the certificates to be secured by deposit of $15,000,000 of the company's bonds.

The money raised will be used in improvements.

Post yourself only on one side of a question. It makes you stupid to the other fellow.

H. M. Davis, former city clerk of Albany was a Richmond visitor yesterday.

Coast Altitude Record Smashed

The former altitude record of 19,300 feet held by Olaf ("Swede") Meyerhoffer, made in San Diego in 1917 with an old type Curtiss plane equipped with an 80 h. p. motor, has been shattered. An altitude of 21,800 feet was made by Walter T. Varney flying a Lincoln-Standard airplane equipped with a 238-horsepower Hispano-Suiza motor. This new Pacific Coast altitude record was made over the city of San Francisco.

While Varney reported he had difficulty breathing at this great altitude he had no engine difficulty whatever. Varney used Red Crown gasoline and Zerolene lubricating oil. Under the normal conditions of the first stages of his flight he climbed at the rate of 1000 feet a minute, but at an altitude of 18,000 feet the air was so "thin" that at times the plane dropped 50 to 75 feet before catching hold and the speed was cut to 600 feet a minute.

The Legend of the Golden Gate

Written By MARIE K. STOKES

The Great Spirit was angry, he told them. He had sent the flood and he steadfastly withheld the sign of fair weather.

He had driven away the game. He had sent the Spirit Ship, out of the mist with the palefaces to tempt them with evil gifts. They must not heed the gifts nor welcome the palefaces to their tepees, for beyond the sea they dwelt in countless numbers. If the redmen should admit them, surely the Great Spirit would no longer keep them out.

The lake would tear down its barriers and would open a gateway for them in from the sea.

They had captured this paleface they must now sacrifice him over the council fire, to show the Great Spirit that they would keep the palefaces from their land and even as the captives' flesh shriveled up in the fire and his blood dried up, so would the waters of the flood shrink and dry away, and at last would the sun set in fire, and all be fair weather.

When the Priest or medicine man ceased speaking, the chief addressed the council. The medicine man had spoken well. They must appease the Great Spirit with the captive's life. But was it wise council to disregard the beautiful weapons of the paleface?

Why could they not beguile the others from the ship, obtain the treasures, and then burn the captive's comrades also and thus more delight the Great Spirit?

When the chief sat down, a guttural grunt of approval ran around the dying fire. The medicine man sprang to his feet. They must not be tempted by the evil gifts. They could not beguile the men from the ship. If they tried, utter destruction of the village was inevitable.

As the medicine man finished a great gust of wind extinguished the fire and scattered the embers. All attempts to rekindle it were in vain, for the driftwood was soggy and refused to burn, even after the precious oil in it was consumed. At length the attempt was abandoned.

The brewing storm threatened to break any moment. Pale lightning flickered over the lake, but as yet the thunder was too distant to be heard.

Gusts of wind shook the flimsy huts, and there was a babel of voices.

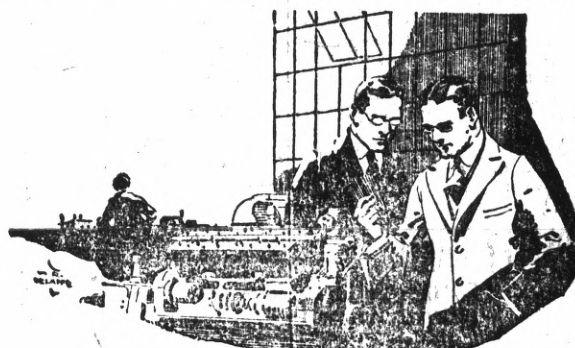

Halfstarved camp dogs prowled around the huts, snarling over each precious scrap of refuse.

Not a star shone in the blackness. Konah was aroused from his revelry by the entrance of an Indian and ordered to the hut where the captive lay. When he had joined the group of hunters around the captive, Konah was bidden to repeat to him in paleface tongue what they said. They would lead the captive to the shore, there he must call to the men, and when they had come ashore, tell them the Chief had considered their proposition and was now ready to trade them provisions.

All this Konah repeated to the captive, who hastened in silence, with but one slight hope of rescue. They unbowed the feet of the captive, who strode out of the door of the hut and walked silently down to the shore.

The storm was growing closer, the lightning flashed fiercely and the thunder rolled nearer at every flash. When the men came to the beach the white men gave a loud hail, which carried out over

THIRD REPRIEVE GIVEN MAN IN DEATH HOUSE

Governor Stays Execution of Lapara,
Convicted of Murder in 1917

San Francisco—For the third time Governor William D. Stephens granted a reprieve to Antonio Lapara, sentenced to die for the murder of Mario Alioto, who was slain while sitting in an automobile on Columbus avenue on November 28, 1917. The reprieve expires June 25. As on the two former occasions, it is made in order to insure further study of the case by the Governor. The date for the execution was originally set within ninety days after May 2, 1918.

Alioto lived at 1622 Powell street, had been married two months, was 26 years old and a chauffeur employed by the San Francisco International Fish Company. Lapara was then 27 years old, lived at 1815 Powell street and worked for the Santa Monica Winery.

Lapara claimed to be innocent of Alioto's murder. He said he was a victim of a mistake in identity. Three days before the execution date Governor Stephens granted reprieve until February 20, on the plea of Lapara's wife and two children, who wanted his life spared till after the holidays, and J. D. Hughes, a friend of Lapara, who said new evidence favorable to Lapara had been found. The second reprieve was granted on February 3.

JAPAN FAVORED BY RED CROSS, OFFICER HOLDS

Partiality in Siberia Put Lives in Jeopardy, Says Lieut. Myers

San Francisco—Assertions that the American Red Cross in Siberia showed partiality toward the Japanese there were made April 21 by Lieutenant Carl R. Myers of the Red Cross, who arrived on the transport Thomas. Lieutenant Myers places the blame on Richard B. Teusler, commander of the Red Cross in Siberia, and said that because of Teusler's attitude the lives of the Red Cross workers were placed in jeopardy.

Lieutenant Myers said: During my work in Siberia I observed that the Japanese were constantly favored by the commander of the Red Cross, Richard B. Teusler. The spirit of the Red Cross work was ruined by this action. Our policy has been and should be an impartial treatment of all in need of our help. There naturally is a strong feeling existing between the Japanese and the Bolshevik element of Russia.

This naturally made our position uncomfortable and dangerous. The Bolshevik Government wanted us to stay, but demanded that we show impartial treatment of all. I believe this brought about the embarrasement that necessitated our withdrawal. Dr. Teusler is now at the head of a hospital at Tokyo and for the last twenty-five years has been making his home in Japan.

It was only toward the end of our stay and after it had been stated that he would be withdrawn that the lives of members were in jeopardy, and that was only in the interior where many were forced to flee.

BERKELEY CHILD FOUND IN BAY

Boy, 7, Dies After Falling From Pier,
Man Fails in Rescue Effort

San Francisco—John Mello, 7 years old, 2407 Tenth street, Berkeley, was drowned April 21 when he fell off the Berkeley municipal pier at the foot of University ave. Julius Irvin, a teamster, narrowly escaped a similar fate when he leaped into the water in an effort to save the struggling boy.

The boy, with Julius Zirzi, 11 years old, 2114 Byron street, had been playing on the pier all afternoon. Mello, while walking along the edge, suddenly lost his balance and fell into the water. Zirzi's screams attracted Irvin, who was passing, and he leaped into the water and swam after the drowning lad, who had already gone down twice.

When within a few feet of Mello, Irvin was seized with cramps and he, too, started to go down. R. L. Dorrang, 3020 Florida street, employed at the pier, threw a rope to Irvin and he caught it as he was about to sink. Mello was swept out into the middle of the stream by the strong tide and was lost from view.

The boy was the son of Alexander Mello, a butcher.

Dealer—What do you want with it? Is it for your father?

Little Harry—No, sir. It's for our horse—Lexington Leader.

WIFE OF SLAYER GUILTY OF PERJURY

Jury of Men Returns Verdict After
Less Than Three Hours Deliberation—Two Counts Dismissed

San Francisco—Guilty on nine counts and not guilty on two was the verdict rendered April 21 in the perjury trial of Mrs. Alice Harris Woodcock, whose husband, Edgar Woodcock, on the night of September 18, 1918, shot and killed Edward C. Kelley, declared by Mrs. Woodcock to have accosted her at Van Ness and Market. Mrs. Woodcock was charged with perjury as a result of her testimony in the trial in which her husband was acquitted of the murder charge against him.

A jury in Judge Ward's Court brought in the verdict at 8:15 o'clock p. m., after deliberating for two hours and a half. Howard J. Moore acted as foreman.

It is expected that an appeal will be taken immediately. Mrs. Woodcock was found not guilty on counts four and nine of the indictment, the first referring to the manner in which she was alleged to have called her husband just before Kelley was killed, and the second referring to the words Woodcock was alleged to have spoken to her as he rushed past her toward Kelly.

Mrs. Woodcock was weeping bitterly when the verdict was announced, and although she hid her face in her hands and sobbed, she made no audible demonstration. Her white-haired mother and her sister, who have been constantly at her side, broke down when the verdict was announced and wept.

Both were assisted from the courtroom, half-fainting. Many women friends of Mrs. Woodcock, who have been present at all the sessions and waited hours to hear the verdict, burst into tears.

Eleven counts charging perjury were made in the indictment. Those on which Mrs. Woodcock was found guilty were:

That she testified her husband and Cooper were going to the State Mining Bureau on the night of the shooting, whereas in fact they were not.

That when she came out of the library she was surprised to find the two men waiting for her, whereas in fact they were waiting in pursuance of a prearranged plan.

That Edgar Woodcock suggested walking back down Market street, retracing their steps in order to see if there were a policeman on the beat, whereas in fact this was not said and this was not the reason for the walk.

That she was told by detectives in the office of Captain of Detectives Matheson after her arrest that unless she made a statement regarding the events of the night she would not be allowed to see her husband and that certain items in the statement were suggested by questions, whereas in fact no threats were made and the statement was written down in her own words.

That she walked ahead of the two men on the evening expedition because they were talking confidentially, whereas in fact it was in pursuance of a prearranged plan.

That when Edgar Woodcock was attacking a young man in an automobile at the corner of Fulton and Larkin streets, Mrs. Woodcock told him to stop as the young man had had enough, whereas in fact she did not speak.

That Mrs. Woodcock testified that there was a discussion among the three of them over the presence of a policeman on Van Ness and Market, whereas in fact there was no such discussion.

That Mrs. Woodcock testified that she did not smile at men standing at the corner of Van Ness and Market, whereas in fact she did smile at them.

Golden declared after the verdict was announced that he regretted very deeply the necessity of prosecuting the case against Mrs. Woodcock and that while his duty had forced him to wage a vigorous fight for her conviction, he sympathized very keenly with the woman facing a prison sentence and with her family and friends.

Large numbers of Mrs. Woodcock's friends attended every session of the trial, and the popular interest in the case attracted an audience that crowded the courtroom daily.

The trial opened on Monday morning April 12. During the entire period the jury was locked up.

PAGEANT "CHRIST IN AMERICA" PRESENTED

Santa Cruz—The pageant "Christ in America" was presented Wednesday night, April 21, by the convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey counties, in session here. Mrs. Melva S. Green, state president, addressed the convention on "Americanization," and A. W. Hare, representative of the Anti-Saloon League, spoke in behalf of A. J. Wallace as prohibition candidate for the United States Senate.

LOSES LIFE IN AUTO COLLISION

Frank P. Roop, Vice-President of Shreve & Co., Is Victim of Accident on Geary Street

San Francisco—Frank P. Roop, vice-president of Shreve & Company, jewelers, drove his automobile into the rear of a garbage truck at Geary and Leavenworth street shortly after 4 o'clock a. m. April 21, and died a few moments later at the Central Emergency Hospital.

His wife, who was with him in the machine, escaped injury. She called a taxicab and had her husband taken to the hospital. Then she broke down and was unable to describe the accident to Policeman Franklin K. Lane.

Roop and his wife had been entertaining Carl Stanley, manager of the Del Monte Hotel, in their home, 14 Shoreview avenue, and had driven him to the Hotel St. Francis. They were returning home when the accident occurred. Roop's chest was crushed against the steering wheel. Mrs. Roop was in the tonneau seat.

Tony Chapiro, the driver of the truck, was arrested, but was released when he proved that the tail-light on the truck was burning and that the truck was equipped with turning signals. He said he was traveling at a slow speed and Roop's car threw his truck nearly thirty feet.

Roop was born in Calistoga, Cal., but spent most of his life in San Francisco. He was in the United States transport service shortly after the Spanish-American war and later joined Shreve & Company.

A few months ago he was elected vice-president of the firm. Roop was an expert on precious stones and frequent journeys to New York as a buyer for his firm.

He was a member of Richmond Lodge, No. 375, F. and A. M., San Francisco Chapter No. 1, Royal Arch Masons; Golden Gate Commandery, No. 16, Knights Templar, and Islam Temple, Mystic Shrine.

He was 37 years old and, besides his wife, leaves two sons, Jackson, aged 7, and William, 4. A sister, Mrs. August Degenger lives in Hartford, Conn., and another sister, Mrs. Ruth Wright, Los Gatos. He was a nephew of Mrs. Robert Watson of this city.

FROM A BAMBOO CRADLE TO A BAMBOO COFFIN

Have you a little bamboo in your home? The Filipino has, and he can't understand how other peoples live without it.

"Bamboo constitutes the whole or a part of everything made in the Philippines," says Corporal E. Shura, of the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, 320 Market Street, San Francisco, Calif.

"From the cradle to the grave it is indispensable to the Filipino. He lives in a bamboo house, his cradle is made of bamboo, it is part of his food, he cooks with it, his household utensils and equipment are made of it, he farms, fishes, fights and is entertained with it, he makes a certain kind of beer from its seeds, and his coffin and tombstone are bamboo."

"From foundation to roof his dwelling place is entirely bamboo. Not a nail, nor a bit of iron enters into the work of construction. He cooks in the hollow joint of a green bamboo over a blazing heap of bamboo twigs. Bamboo sprouts and seeds are eaten. His drinking cup and his water pail are made from hollow bamboo. He carries a heavy load by deftly balancing a bamboo pole on his shoulder."

"His musical instruments are made entirely of bamboo. So are his agricultural implements, his fish traps and fishing gear, and his weapons of war."

WHEATLAND MAN IS TRAMPLED TO DEATH BY BULL

Marysville—Aaron Parker Brown, an aged Wheatland farmer, was attacked and trampled to death by a bull April 17 on the Brown Ranch. Brown, who was 70 years old, entered the corral to place feed for the cattle. The bull rushed at Brown before he had opportunity to escape and, bowling him over, stamped him to death. The bull had been domesticated. James Parker Brown, a son, resides in Berkeley.

San Rafael—Louis Simontacchi, found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Angelo Bonolanza, was given an indeterminate sentence of from one to ten years by Judge E. I. Butler. He was taken to San Quentin prison. Bonolanza was stabbed to death in a quarrel between the two men.

OFFICER TELLS VIVID STORY OF EXECUTIONS

Japanese Cut Heads of Captured
Reds Off With Heavy Saber

San Francisco—Vivid descriptions of the execution of captured Bolsheviks by the Japanese in Russia were given by Captain A. Millard of the 27th Infantry, who returned from Siberia on the Army transport Logan.

Millard told how five Bolsheviks captured by the Japanese were brought into Sviagina last July and were led out under heavy guard to dig their own graves. When the graves were excavated to a sufficient depth, according to Millard, the prisoners were lined up near the grave with their hands tied behind them. A Japanese officer then started down the line and with his sabre grasped tightly in both hands, struck off the heads of the condemned men as he came up with them.

Capt. N. C. Killian, also of the Twenty Seventh Infantry, who returned on the Logan, said that the number of Japanese in Siberia is overestimated and, in his opinion, the Japanese soldier is not nearly as game as the American "doughboy." It takes an army of several hundred Japanese to do the work a handful of Americans would call child's play," said Killian.

ENGLAND DEALING WITH RUSSIAN BOLSHEVISTS

Facts Revealed By State Department
Regarding Negotiations

Washington—While the United States refuses to let down the bars restraining resumption of American commerce with Russia, British traders, with the help of their Government are proceeding to get in on the ground floor.

That the British are not permitting fear of soviet contamination or German machinations to interfere with their quest for profitable trade is disclosed by the State Department in a statement setting forth some of its information concerning the soviet negotiations with the British.

The negotiations for an exchange of goods between England and Russia are going forward at Copenhagen, where, on April 7, M. Krassin, soviet commissioner of transportation and a party of Bolsheviks met a British treasury delegation headed by Edmund Wise.

The State Department regards Krassin as a notorious individual prominently identified with "German interests in the exploitation of Soviet Russia."

"He is a former German subject and upon the outbreak of the world war became a Russian representing German interests," says the department. He is a close friend and adviser of Nicolai Lenin, president of the Council of People's Commissars the principal governing body of soviet Russia."

ELDEST DAUGHTER OF CHARLES HUGHES DIES

Glen Falls, N. Y.—Helen Hughes, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, died here April 19 after an illness of several months of influenza and pneumonia. She was 28 years old.

Miss Hughes was graduated from Vassar College in 1914 and then devoted herself to Y. W. C. A. work. At first as a volunteer in Washington, D. C., and later as a student secretary in the Northeastern field. In the fall of 1918 she was at work in Boston for the united drive, and while there suffered from an attack of influenza, followed by pneumonia, from which she never recovered.

Oakland—John Henry Diekmann, a director of the Savings and Loan Association of San Francisco and United States Consul to Mexico from 1868 to 1874, died April 18, at his home, 1076 Sixtieth street. Diekmann, who was 73 years old, is survived by three daughters, the Misses Anita, Ottilia and Marie Diekmann; and three sons, Gustave, Adolph and J. Henry Diekmann. Mr. Diekmann's wife, Mrs. Ramona Diekmann, died six months ago. Diekmann came to San Francisco in 1863. He had been a resident of Oakland since 1886.

BABY'S BODY FOUND AT FLEMING'S POINT

Berkeley—Wrapped in a blanket around which a rope was tightly tied, the body of a boy, about four months old, was found on the beach near Fleming's Point, April 18, by Victor Conca a youthful fisherman living at 809 Stanley street.

The body was clad in clothing of good quality. Believing that he would be paid for bringing the body to the nearest undertaker, Conca strapped it to his bicycle and pedaled to the Berg undertaking establishment.

That the baby died of natural causes and was thrown into the water is the opinion of Dr. Clarence A. De Puy.

SNOWFALL ENDS DROUGHT FEARS

Average for This Period of
Year in Sierras

San Francisco—Weather reports received here from stations all over California indicate that sufficient snow has fallen since April 13 to eliminate fear of water shortage for this year.

On the high Sierra thirty inches of snow fell in twenty-four hours. The pack of Summit has now reached a depth of 93 inches, which is 6 inches above the average there at this time of the year and 3 inches above last year's level at this date. Thirty-three inches of snow fell on Summit during the last storm. The snow was soft, however, and it was expected that the pack would shrink several inches in the next few days.

April 16, 1917 was the highest record mark in the history of the state when 162 inches of snow was reported on Summit while the lowest on record was reported on the date in 1912, when only 28 inches fell.

The Sacramento river was reported to have been brought to a new level since the rainy season commenced by the tremendous down-pour of rain and heavy snowfall. At Antioch, 25 miles from the mouth of the river, irrigationists reported to the United States Weather Bureau that on account of the protracted dry spell, prior to the storm, the river was so far below the usual summer level that salt water from the bay forced them to stop their pumps. The result of the storm is expected to freshen the river to the usual fresh and salt water division line in the vicinity of Mary Point.

Farmers and irrigationists who, previous to the abnormally heavy rains for March were predicting one of the driest years in history, together with the statement from electrical companies that water for hydroelectric power in Northern California would be seriously affected, were jubilant following the reports of the rain and snowfall all over California resulting from the recent storm.

Growers are confident that both orchard and field crops will be about normal this year.

TRADE OPPORTUNITIES IN CHINA SAID TO BE VAST

Secretary of Foreign Trade Convention Points Out Opportunities

San Francisco—China, with vast undeveloped resources but with little present buying power, far more than South American countries, also with huge resources partly developed but with more money to purchase, is the United States' great potential market of the future, in the opinion of P. Converse, secretary of the Pacific committee in charge of the National Foreign Trade Convention here May 12 to 15.

Supporting his contention, Converse pointed to figures on an enormous world commerce chart, which is to be displayed beside a giant map of the world in the trade advisers' room at the Civic Auditorium, where the convention will be held.

In 1917 China's imports were given as $559,740,000, an expenditure of $1.72 for each one of her estimated 325,000,000 inhabitants. Imports of all South American countries were $574,900,000 for the same year a per capita expenditure of $14.66. South America bought nine times as heavily as China proportionate to population. Exports show even greater disparity. South America's being $22.41 per capita and China's only $1.45.

A long array of figures pertinent to the business of the convention is on the commerce chart from which Converse quoted. Most of the countries of the world are listed and latest and most comprehensive information is given.

Delegates to the convention will be able to see by a glance at the chart just where the developed markets are, present transportation facilities of any territory in the world and other facts of vital importance to their discussions.

7 AND 8 CENTS COINS PROVIDED IN MEASURE

Washington.—Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, of New Jersey, introduced a bill providing for the coinage of seven- and eight-cent coins. It was referred to the banking committee.

Long Beach—George Daly, a pilot flying for an aviation school at Wilmington, near here, and a passenger were killed April 21, when Daly's airplane fell 1000 feet into the Pacific ocean off the recreation pier here. It was said the engine of the plane failed while Daly was making a loop. The bodies were recovered. The passenger was Edward L. Connors, 21 years old, of Wilmington.

BRANDS AND STANDARDS TEND TO DEVELOP BETTER FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC MARKETS

Inspecting Butter Preparatory to Shipping It to a Foreign Market. Other Things Being Equal, Inspected Products Are Counted More Desirable Than Those Not Inspected.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There may be nothing in a name, but there is a lot in a brand, especially in the export trade. Practically all export business of food products is handled on a basis of branded goods. To a much greater extent than the American producer realizes foreign buyers make use of brands in purchasing products by cable, and importers in foreign lands depend upon brands in judging the quality of the products they handle.

There are three ways of buying goods for export. One way is by the use of samples of standard products, another by orders, often cabled, giving instructions to agents to buy specified quantities of certain branded products; the third method, by far the least used, is for an importer to visit foreign countries in person and select products wanted.

Advantages of Brands.
In the United States the use of standard and of many copyrighted brands on domestic products has helped sell goods of various kinds and trade-marked goods of quality have enjoyed wider distribution than non-standard, unbranded products. Many concerns that have not developed any export business own copyrighted trademarks on products sold in home markets which they value among the chief assets of their business.

Of course it is not enough merely to use brands, but their use today is coming more and more to be backed up by quality in the goods so labeled. Especially is this true where products are widely advertised. There are some commodities for which a brand is in itself an advertisement and when this brand becomes known among buyers as a guaranty of quality or grade, it serves to expedite the sale of the product.

Take butter, for example, of which the United States exported over 30,000,000 pounds during the first ten months of 1919. A large amount of American butter is shipped without inspection or grading; it is not handled so that foreign buyers know what they are receiving and as a result it does not sell as well in foreign markets as butter from countries where inspection and branding are practiced.

Investigators in the dairy marketing division of the federal bureau of markets has found that unbranded butter from the United States, while selling freely during the present scarcity of butter in other countries, is not likely to retain a hold on foreign buyers after other countries resume exportation. In this fact is an important lesson not only for dairy interests but other producers desirous of expanding their trade abroad. Creamery men cannot expect to develop a foreign market for their products unless they establish reputations for their goods just as manufacturers in other lines have done—and standards or brands are a great aid in such business development.

Building a Foreign Trade.

Before the war Denmark was a large factor in the international trade in butter. She has been famous for her dairy products for years, not only on the continent, but in South America, where even in out-of-the-way corners of the tropics travelers found the only butter available came in cans with a Danish label. New Zealand has built up a trade with Europe in butter through a government inspection service, and butter must measure up to certain standards before the inspectors will place their stamp upon it.

Inspection Service.

This idea of inspected and branded butter is not new in the United States, for the federal department of agriculture has been inspecting interstate and Canal zone shipments of butter for some time. This inspection, however, is not compulsory, and has not as yet been applied to export trade to any great extent. Recently a large purchase of butter for export was inspected by a United States government inspector at the request of the purchaser who bought the butter subject to inspection. This is said to be the first time that inspection by any government has been asked for on any large amount of butter exports. Exporters in the United States who ship to Central America usually use brands on their butter and have developed some trade there in recent months.

If the United States is to keep its present export trade in dairy products and not suffer from possible competition in home markets, it is necessary to pay more attention to the quality of its products and make fuller use of brands and scores in handling its butter production. What applies to dairy products applies to many other lines as well.

SMALL HOUSES BEST FOR CHICKEN FLOCK

Size of Building Should Be Governed by Number of Hens.

Smaller Breeds Being More Active and Restless Require About as Much Space as Larger Ones—Make Structure Square.

The size of the hen house should be governed by the size of the flock. From 40 to 50 seems to be about as many birds as are safe to keep together. With flocks of this size from four to five square feet of floor space should be allowed to each bird. This will suffice in most cases where careful attention is given to cleanliness and ventilation. If the fowls are kept in smaller flocks more floor space to a bird will be needed.

In sections where the climate is so mild that it is unnecessary to keep fowls confined, except for a few days at a time, less space to a bird should be sufficient. The smaller breeds, being more active and restless, require about as much room as the larger breeds.

For the greater amount of floor space for the least cost a building should be square. Other things being equal, the nearer square a house is the less lumber it will take according to poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture. However, it is sometimes out of the question to build a large house square. A building should not be so wide that the sun cannot reach the back of the house, otherwise it will be damp. Fourteen feet is convenient width. Build the house as low as possible without danger of attendants bumping their heads against the ceiling, for the low house is more easily warmed than a high one.

POOR HATCHES ARE COMMON

Condition of Eggs Previous to Hatching Is More Apt Than Incubation to Be Cause.

Poor hatches are common with poultrymen, but what causes them is a much discussed question. The answer depends on a great variety of circumstances. The condition of the eggs previous to hatching is more apt than the incubation to be the cause, although improper handling in either case will produce the same results, says the United States department of agriculture. When eggs fail to hatch, first see whether the breeding stock is kept under conditions which tend to produce strong, fertile germs in the eggs; next, whether the eggs have been handled properly before incubation; and lastly, whether the conditions were right during incubation.

When an incubator is used a daily temperature record should be kept of each machine. The operator can then compare the temperature at which the machines have been maintained. This may prove of value in the future, especially if the brooder records can be checked back against those of the incubator.

NEVER PLOW UNDER MANURE

When Seeding Field to Clover Fertilizer and Disking Leave Much to Conserve Moisture.

Never plow under manure or fertilizers when seeding a field to clover. The manure and diskings leave an excellent mulch on the surface of the ground which conserves moisture, especially during the hot dry weather in midsummer.

Underground Railroad and Useless Caucus Room, Two Extravagances at Capitol.

One of the curiosities of the capitol is the miniature railroad that connects the senate, via underground passage, with the senate office building, relates a Washington correspondent. The cars of this railroad operate on a monorail by electricity.

The road is about 150 yards in length and has a double track.

When one car is at one end of the track the other car is at the other end, and vice versa. The railroad was intended originally to aid senators in making speed from their offices to the senate chamber. Roll calls do not require much time in the senate and there is danger that if a roll call is asked when a senator is in his office he will miss the roll call unless he uses the electric car. That saves him about ten or fifteen seconds' time.

The road is open to the public and it costs nothing to ride.

As a consequence messenger boys, clerks and janitors use the railroad freely, while Senators, except on days when the weather is inclement, prefer to walk in the open air between their offices and the senate chamber.

Besides the initial equipment, the road entails an expense of about $50 weekly for the employ of two operators and probably half that amount for electricity.

This would make a yearly expense of $3,900 as a very conservative estimate. As a matter of fact the railroad probably costs more like $6,000 or $7,000 a year.

The senate has another extravagance that is almost an eyesore.

This is the palatial caucus room that cost no one knows how many thousands of dollars when the senate office building was constructed. The room is finished throughout in marble and has immense crystal chandeliers. It has the largest seating capacity of any room in the capitol except the hall of the house and the senate chamber.

Yet the acoustic properties of the room are so bad that it is never used, and it stands there as an expensive monument to some one's mistake in planning the senate office building.

Of course a person would ordinarily pay no attention to such a thing as bad acoustic properties, but in this room it cannot help but be noticed.

"That rare feat you mention is a paradoxical one?" "In what way?" "It is also well done."

Murphy's Odd Idea.

An officer on board a warship was trilling his men. "I want every man to lie on his back, with his legs in the air, and move them as if he were riding a bicycle," he explained. "Now commence."

After a short effort one of the men stopped.

"Why have you stopped, Murphy?" asked the officer. "If ye please, sir," was the answer. "O'm coasting."

A Successful Student.

"Will you give me a crust of bread an' a cup of water, aum?" "Certainly, I'll fix you up a nice lunch. But why didn't you ask for something substantial?" "I'm a student of human nature. It's mighty seldom I strikes anybody that's mean enough to give me just a crust an' a cup of water."

No Self-Healer.

"What has become of that hypnotist?" "Had to quit hypnotizing. Putting people to sleep wore down his nerves and gave him insomnia."

Law Forbids Hoarding.

Persons who have sought to excuse their violations of rules and regulations of the United States food administration on the assertion that "there is no law requiring it," are warned that there is a law governing such cases. According to the law, persons who willfully hoard any necessities shall, upon conviction, be fined not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both. The statute sets out just what "hoarding" is and includes, not only the act of hoarding, but the withholding of necessities to gain a higher price for them. Hoarders will be prosecuted in the federal courts.

CALOMEL TODAY, SICK TOMORROW

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivated. It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crumbles into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just get your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start you liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just get back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

To Have a Clear Sweet Skin. Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bath with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Adv.

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others. It works!

Ouch ! ! ! ! This kind of row talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or harden callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from your feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezezone tell him to order a small bottle for you!—Adv.

The light twinkled, then there was a creaking of tackle, and very soon the click and splash of oars was heard.

ransom him; that the Indians had promised them stores.

A voice from the boat assented and the rowing began again, while Konah repeated what had been said, to the other Indians.

They stood waiting for the boat to return just where the overflow from the lake emptied into the sea, in the trough of the pass.

With a sudden crash of thunder and a gust of wind, the storm broke upon them.

The rain came in dashing sheets. The men in the ship evidently thought their comrade had escaped from his captors, and they were coming to take him off to the ship.

When near the shore the sound of rowing ceased, and from the boat came the demand:

"Who's there?"

The captive called back telling them not to come too close for the Indians held him, but to return to the ship at once and bring gifts to with each gust of wind, as if flung from great basins in heaven. The lightning glared so close it seemed to fill the air.

The watchers abandoned their purpose and started back to the village. They could scarcely stand in the fury of the storm. The thunder was one continuous roar.

Captives and captor made all possible haste, now seeing their way by the glare of the lightning, now blinded by the dashing rain.

Suddenly a cry broke from those in front. They turned and rushed back toward the sea in reckless fear knocking over those in the rear.

But flight was useless. The first great flood of the cloudburst bearing the drifting ruins of their huts, rushed down upon them from the lake, a roaring wall of water.

Futful Indian cries of agony and fear, mingled with the yelping of the swimming dogs, were scarcely audible above the roar of the water.

The fleeing braves were swept from their feet like straws and went bobbing away to the sea on the seething flood.

The captive, whose hands were still bound, was whirled and tossed out towards his ship, but his cries were silenced long before he came near it, even if it had not dragged anchor seaward upon the sudden flood.

Day after day the rain poured and the flood roared through the pass, cutting it wider and deeper. The larger the passage became the greater was the volume of water released from the lake, and no faster did the torrent wear out the channel, when at last the downpour ceased, the lake had run out to the level of the sea and its size was greatly diminished. All around it lay sweltering mud flats, once submerged, and over them stalked long legged cranes, eating the stranded fish, through the pass now rushed the strong tide of the ocean. It swept it into the lake making its fresh water salt, and changing its name to a bay, and at evening came the sign of the Great Spirit.

The Sun sank to rest in a flood of crimson and the sea seemed bathed in fire, and the newly cut strait was a Golden Gate.

OLE HANSON ON PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Ole Hanson, former mayor of Seattle, recently made a talk on public ownership of utilities. Among other things he said:

"I cannot believe, from my experience, that the public utility that employs any large number of men, or where a large amount of capital necessary, can or will function as efficiently as a private corporation which has an individual reward at the end of the day.

"If we want to make the American government a kind of pick pocket, the way to do it is just to confiscate these great properties throughout the country.

"I know what these little spittoon philosophers in every town say about all corporations, but in the final analysis the corporations are owned by the great rank and file of the people who have been thrifty enough to lay something aside for a rainy day, and I believe that our work, especially every public man's work in this great country, is to see that those men get justice and at the same time see that the public gets adequate service at a fair price and compensatory remuneration."

And this comes from a man, who when mayor of Seattle, favored public ownership—until he saw it work.

CANDY INSTEAD OF LIQUOR

Heavy consumption of candy has followed prohibition in Alaska. Recently the Alaska Engineering commission, which has charge of the construction of the government railroad in the north, advertised for bids for 1000 pounds of chocolates and caramels and hundreds of boxes of bar candy and chewing gum. The candy and gum will be taken north for the men working on the line.

And yet candy is classed as a luxury and taxed special excise taxes above all other taxes paid.

No better illustration is needed to show the shortcomings and inequality of legislation passed under the stress of war conditions. The crisis is now passed and our taxation system should be revised so as to equalize and lighten the tax burden on industry and thereby encourage industrial expansion instead of discouraging it.

Don't be on the fence. It's good for nothing as being asleep.

How much should I give to make this a better world?

A CERTAIN man in New York filled out his income tax report.

It showed an income so large that his tax was 53%. And his total gifts to church and charity for the year were $148.

Think of it—thousands spent for luxuries and pleasure for himself; and $148 to leave the world a little better than he found it!

Most of us do better than that; but not so very much better.

Our average daily gift for all church causes is

- less than we spend for daily papers
- less than a local telephone call
- less than a third of the day's car fare
- less than 3 cents a day

No wonder that 80% of the ministers of America are paid less than $25 a week. No wonder that the church hospitals turn away thousands of sick people a year. No wonder that China has only one doctor for every 400,000 people. No wonder that every church board and charity society is forever meeting deficits, forever passing the hat.

It isn't because we are selfish; it isn't because we don't want to help. It's just because no one has ever put up a great big program to us, and asked us to think of the work of the church in a systematic businesslike way.

The Interchurch World Movement represents the united program of thirty denominations. They have surveyed their whole task, no business could have done it better.

They have budgeted their needs; no business could have a more scientific budget. They have united to prevent the possibility of waste and duplication. At least a million dollars will be saved by the fact that thirty individual campaigns are joined in one united effort.

And they come to the men or women who love America—to you—this week asking you to use them as the channel through which a certain definite part of your income can be applied to make this a better world.

Only you can determine what part of your income that should be.

It's a good time right now to answer that question. We're passing through the world just once; how much better will the world be because you passed through?
